

New Book Offers Biblical Hope To People Who've Experienced Unwanted Homosexual Feelings

Beyond the Shades of Gray is a resource of personal hope and inspiration, found in one man's journey out of homosexual sin.*

Have you ever personally struggled with the sin of homosexuality? Do you know someone, or know of another person who has? Even if you have never personally had the misfortune of desiring to overcome a tenacious behavior, such as that of homosexuality, chances are that you know of someone who has, rather you've realized it or not! Many people are just far too ashamed to admit these kinds of inward struggles to anyone else within their network of family and friends, especially when that person is also another Christian believer among us.

It is impossible, living within our western cultures today, not to have been personally impacted by the pervasive nature of this behavior, in some significant way. It has literally invaded every corner of society. And while many well meaning do-gooders attempt to attach a positive and "normal" attitude to it, many of us in the Body of Christ have folded our hands in apathetic silence, or we have given ourselves over to an uncompassionate form of ignorance concerning the far deeper human issues of this behavior. We cannot afford this enabling kind of silence and naivety any longer—not while there are people within many of our own congregations who are struggling in silence with it. The Gospel of Jesus Christ still offers a genuine hope of freedom to every person who has ever struggled with homosexual sin!

Hold on to this flier as a reminder to buy the book either for yourself, or for someone else you're thinking about today!

© 2012 WestBow Press Publishing

ISBN: 978-1-4497-3204-2 (hard cover)

ISBN: 978-1-4497-3203-5 (soft cover)

ISBN: 978-1-4497-3202-8 (e-book)

Available now at <http://bookstore.westbowpress.com> and other major book retailers!